Cottagers prepare for municipal elections

If you want something done right, do it yourself.

Many cottagers will be heeding this advice when the municipal elections roll around in November. They want their voices heard — their issues addressed — in local decision-making and some will be throwing their names into the hat November in a bid to win a seat at the council tables.

What's more is they'll be prepared to mount effective campaigns, armed with solid advice from seasoned politicians and pundits.

More than 200 cottage owners attended a day-long conference in Scarborough on April 23, where election readiness was the primary focus. The occasion was the Federation of Ontario Cottagers' Associations (FOCA) spring seminar.

For decades, cottagers have stood on the sidelines of the political arena, often grumbling that their interests are being overlooked. Only recently have they begun to make significant inroads and the result has been a learning experience for cottagers and permanent residents alike.

In Haliburton County, most municipalities have representation from cottagers or former cottagers. These councillors, deputy reeves and reeves have discovered there are seldom simple solutions to problems. Meanwhile, permanent residents have come to realize these council members are not necessarily their opponents.

By getting involved in the political process, cottagers have broken free of the "troublemaker" label. Instead of criticizing from the sidelines, cottagers are getting personally involved in the solutions.

The keynote speaker at the FOCA seminar was John Birnbaum, the executive director of the Georgian Bay Association. He cautioned potential councillors that their views may not always prevail, "but at least we'll have been part of the action — not seen as just negative troublemakers always criticizing."

This veteran campaigner has managed 24 elections over the past 18 years and boasts 22 successes. He told delegates

Hodgson earns MNR critic posting

Victoria-Haliburton's new Conservative MPP has been named Critic for the Ministry of Natural Resources.

Chris Hodgson's understanding of the issues surrounding this ministry became evident during the by-election campaign, causing Conservative leader Mike Harris to take note.

"During his campaign, Chris demonstrated a tremendous grasp of resource issues so critical to his riding," Harris said. "He has earned the Natural Resources Critic post."

Hodgson welcomed the appointment. "It's encouraging to be given such an important role so soon after being elected. I'm looking forward to the challenge and hopefully offering some constructive advice."

The former Dysart Township Reeve has been a Member of Provincial Parliament since March 17 when he won the seat in a by-election.

"Decisions made at the MNR have repercussions on industry, recreation and tourism, the environment, municipal affairs and small business," said Hodgson. "One of my main objectives will be to ensure that decisions and processes are based on a common-sense approach which will provide results and take in the needs of rural Ontario."

Hodgson was also appointed to a Standing Committee on Regulations and Private Bills.

School board finalizes its budget

The Haliburton County Board of Education gave final approval to its 1994 budget with a surprising split vote.

The budget of $17,076,545 was passed, but it was also opposed by five of the 14 trustees in attendance at last Tuesday's board meeting.

Glamorgan Trustee Craig Petit was the only member to speak out against the budget. He was asking for a reversal in the cut to teaching staff at the Gooderham school.

The budget calls for a reduction of .7 teachers at Gooderham Elementary School, which Petit said is a big mistake. While enrolment is increasing, the teaching staff is decreasing, he noted. Meanwhile, the school has a high proportion of students needing special attention. Petit said

Education Director Brad

Saunders said this situation is not unique to Gooderham. Enrolment is increasing across the board and there will be three fewer teachers next year.

Saunders said the board is not in a position where it can hire new teachers because the provincial social contract calls for increased pupil-teacher ratios. Therefore, additional teaching staff at Gooderham would mean reduced staffing elsewhere.

"Every school in one shape or another will be offering less service," he said. "It's a very difficult situation for all of us."

The pupil/teacher ratio in Gooderham is 12, which is well below the board average of 15.

Petit then asked if the board would consider hiring an educational assistant to help out at Gooderham. "If there's no change, please give us an EA to help the kids," he said. "Otherwise, the kids will just go through the system and be of no value to anyone."

The Superintendent of Schools, said there is a procedure for applying for educational assistants. He said Gooderham school has not yet applied for an assistant. He said any request will be considered according to the procedure when it is received.

Trustee Len Salvatori said funding for more teachers might have been possible if the board agreed to cut the number of trustees.

Cutting trustees is no solution, countered Cheryl Murdoch. With fewer trustees to carry the workload, the board would ultimately be forced to hire additional administrative staff, she said.

Resident celebrates 90th birthday

Margaret LeBoutillier, a resident at Hyland Crest Senior Citizens' Home, celebrated her 90th birthday Friday.

Margaret was born on April 29, 1904 to Daniel and Rachel Kitchen of Little Current, Ontario (on Manitoulin Island). She lived there until her mother died.

Margaret, then 13 years old, came to live with relatives in Lochlin, where she received her education.

On June 26, 1929, she married Roy LeBoutillier, who Margaret had known before they both went to Toronto to work — she at a private home and he at a paper factory.

Shortly after their marriage, Roy and Margaret LeBoutillier returned to Haliburton to help Roy's family run Cedar Beach Lodge on the North Kashagawigamog Lake Road.

During the day, Margaret worked with her husband and his parents, Alice and Henri LeBoutillier, in the lodge. In the evening, Margaret would help out at the Golden Slipper Dance Hall. The "Slipper" was built by Roy and later sold to Al Perrin before the birth of Roy and Margaret's only child Paula.

From that time on, until the death of her husband in 1988, Margaret devoted her life to her church and her family, which includes her daughter Paula, her husband Mike, their sons Rob and Michael and Michael's wife Patti and their newborn son Brandon.

Margaret LeBoutillier has been a resident at Hyland Crest since 1989.

Teachers contract signed with no cost increase

Haliburton's secondary school teachers have reached an agreement for a one-year contract with the board.

The new contract does not provide for any pay increases, but increases the flexibility in teacher leave plans. For example, teachers with three years of seniority will now qualify for self-financed leaves of absence. Previously, only those who had taught for five years were eligible.

The contract also streamlines the department headship structure. The present 16 department headships have been compressed into 10 new organizational units. There is no cost savings from this move, but it is expected to be more productive. The headship structure will be reviewed in two years to ensure it meets the needs of the school and students.

Teachers on the elementary panel have agreed to leave their contract unchanged. Trustee Cheryl Murdoch said the teachers were not interested in negotiating any changes this year.

Board Chairman Lloyd Griffiths commented on the high level of co-operation received from the teachers. "It's a pleasure to work with people who want to get things solved," he said.

The contracts represent no increase in cost to the taxpayers.

Substitute Decisions Act eases the burden

The Substitute Decisions Act, which is to take effect in early 1995, will protect mentally incapable people while making it easier for family members to make financial and personal care decisions for them.

The idea behind the Substitute Decisions Act is simple: By creating a power of attorney for your financial affairs and a power of attorney for your personal care, you can make sure that someone of your choosing has the legal authority to act on your behalf. For further information and to obtain a free power of attorney kit, contact your nearest Information Centre in Haliburton or Minden. In Haliburton, the office is located in the Drag River Municipal Building, Maple Avenue, open Monday to Friday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. phone 457-2733. For Minden residents, the centre is located in the Anson, Hindon and Minden Municipal Building on Milne Street and is open every Tuesday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. phone 286-4100.

that the keys to success are an early start, proper motivation and a positive attitude.

In addition, he coached delegates to take full advantage of proxy privileges to allow all cottage association members to participate in the election.

"Let us be clear about our motivation for wanting to get involved in the local council and school board affairs in our seasonal residential communities," he said to an audience of about 150. Firstly, he said, there is the emotional attachment to the beautiful surroundings. And secondly, is the need for representation.

"In my view, all of the problems that have occurred in our seasonal communities that irritate or frustrate us are the result of poor or inadequate representation of our legitimate points of view when those decisions were made," said Birnbaum. "And that's our fault."

Still, he advised that candidates put forth a positive attitude.

"Rather than approach elections with a negative point of view that says 'throw the bums out', I suggest that our strategy should be to gain or enhance representation of our point of view and perspective at the council or board table."

In cottage country, where the majority of voters are seasonal residents, the advance polls and proxies can make the difference between success and failure. On average, voter turnout for the last municipal elections in Ontario was 44 per cent. In cottage country, the turnout was just 34 per cent. And in Haliburton County, the turnout was a mere 25 per cent.

The importance of the advance polls was particularly evident in Minden, where a cottage association promoted a slate of preferred candidates. A record turnout at the advance polls provided a solid edge for four of the candidates.

Jean Anthon, one of the successful cottage candidates, was on a workshop panel at the FOCA conference. She cautioned potential candidates to be careful of what they promise and to be prepared for a heavy workload.

Anthon's first three-year term in office is winding down and she readily admitted it has been more work than she had anticipated. During her term, Anthon has wrestled through some difficult issues, such as the creation of a new municipal well, a proposed shift to market value assessment and the ongoing fear of losing the Minden hospital.

Be prepared to spend lots of time on political work, she said. In addition to the council meetings there are committee meetings to attend, mounting stacks of documents and literature to read, and ongoing filing of information.

In terms of election promises, she warned fellow cottagers to be wary of what they are signing on to. When candidates make promises, they should be prepared to do all the work themselves, she said. For example, Anthon said she promised three years ago to introduce a regular column on council happenings. She has made good on the promise, but it has meant she had to find the time to write it each month.

Finally, Anthon encouraged others to get involved in the process. "It's a very honourable profession and you can be proud of your personal goals to do something."

Canine Therapy warms hearts

Hyland Crest residents look forward to furry visitors each month

by Jerry Grozelle

The third Thursday of every month is a day that many of the residents of Hyland Crest look forward to. That's when Joan Bunn and Rhonda Francis bring some furry friends to the home to provide some canine therapy for the residents.

Bunn and Francis had some assistance from Ingun Schoulten on their April visit. They brought along two of Bunn's Shelties, named China and Korrie, as well as Francis' Spaniel-Poodle cross Angel and her Scotch Collie Shawna. They also brought four kittens at their last visit.

Bunn and Francis and various helpers have been visiting Hyland Crest once a month for about five years.

"On a regular basis just Rhonda and I do it," Bunn said, adding that when ever possible, friends or family members are recruited to help out. "Usually, we try to bring two dogs each.

"We go from room to room," Bunn said. "We travel the whole home. We don't just stay in the main lounge. We go into the rooms and ask the seniors if they want to visit with the dogs. We go down stairs into the chronic care Cyrille deLang loves the monthly visits from Joan Bunn and Rhonda Francis. On the third Thursday of each month, Bunn and Francis bring a few of their dogs from room to room at the home. In return, these two breeders delight in the reaction from the residents. "Their eyes light up. They reach out and touch the dogs... It's a good positive response and it makes us feel good too..."

unit too. We're willing to go where we can to see the people.

Bunn and Francis organized a canine walk a few years ago for the Tub Fund, raising more than $6,000. They sometimes set up obstacle courses in the auditorium and put the dogs through their paces for the entertainment of the residents.

"We give them dog shows too," Bunn said. "We dress up as clowns and we dress the dogs up."

The temperament of the dogs is important. They have to be non aggressive, good natured and friendly. The dogs are bathed and groomed before they visit the facility.

"We want them to be nice and clean," Bunn said.

Bunn operates a Canadian Kennel Club registered kennel under the name Syndalas.

"I enjoy my dogs," Bunn said. "They're all family pets, basically.

The reaction of the residents is what brings Bunn and Francis back to Hyland Crest month after month.

"Some of the seniors who don't have much reaction to their day to day living — you get a smile from them, you get a response from them; their eyes light up; they reach out and touch the dogs. It's a good, positive response and it makes us feel good too because you're sort of getting through to them. Maybe they're remembering something from the past.

"And it's excellent for the dogs too. It's good socialization for the dogs, and they enjoy it."

Bunn said that almost all of the residents of Hyland Crest have had dogs in the past. The canine visits may rekindle fond memories for the seniors.

The canine visitation program started when Doris Robertson contacted a local veterinarian, who, in turn, approached Francis. Bunn was asked by Francis if she would be interested and the two women have been visiting the home once a month since 1989.

Francis said there was a lady who suffered from Alzheimers Disease who hadn't uttered a word in a long time. When she was approached with one of the dogs, she spoke, to the amazement of everyone.

"It's nice to be able to give a little of yourself and have somebody gain from it," Francis said.

Shadow workers

New program gives students a taste of the working world

Minden's grade 8 students will get a taste of the working world this Friday when they forsake their classrooms for a day in the offices, workshops and business establishments of the area.

In keeping with the belief that education is not restricted to the classroom, the 65 students will venture out into the community to participate in an innovative program designed to provide students with some insight into potential careers.

Aptly named "Job Shadowing", the program allows students to spend an entire day observing an employee at work. "The idea is basically to observe (the employee) and see what's involved in that career," says guidance teacher Dave Kennedy.

The students are expected to make all the arrangements and get whatever information is needed ahead of time. On Friday, they will arrange for their own transportation to and from the work place.

"It gives them a bit of an idea about how the real world works," says Kennedy. He said he came across this program while attending a course last summer. shadowing has been tried with great success in many other areas, he said. Since this is the first year that guidance has been provided on a full-time basis at ASES, this is the first opportunity to try it out here.

Implementing this program in Andrea Hughes, a grade 8 student from Archie Stouffer Elementary School got an early start on her job shadowing assignment. She spent a day with Times editor Russ Duhaime, learning how a community newspaper is produced.

a small community is particularly difficult. Finding 65 people who are willing to take a student is a challenge, but the response has been tremendous and all students have found placements.

In addition to watching people at work, the students will be asking plenty of questions. The students are expected to find out as much as possible about the job and then prepare a report and share their findings with the rest of the class.

Kennedy says the presentation is an important part of the program. It allows all the students to share in the information gathered by others.

Of course, while the students are out of the classroom, teachers get a day off, right?

Wrong. Kennedy says the grade 8 teachers will be attending a meeting with the high school guidance teachers on Friday to work out some of the details of the students' transition to the high school.

Perpetuating a myth

What exactly are the issues of concern to cottagers across Ontario?

It was somewhat disturbing to attend the Federation of Ontario Cottagers Association spring seminar last week and witness the "us versus them" attitude being promoted on a grand scale.

FOCA members were being coached in tactics for running a successful election campaign in preparation for this November's municipal election. The advice was sound and worthwhile, but the sentiment that all cottagers are like-minded people and are not well served by their municipal councils in cottage country is one that must be abandoned.

Cottagers, like permanent residents, are individuals. What one person believes to be a priority may vary significantly from that of the next person — regardless of whether he or she is a cottager or resident.

Three years ago in Minden we saw an election that brought a slate of "cottager candidates" to office. These individuals have done an exceptional job of representing the municipality throughout a very difficult term. Their success, however, is not due to their status but to their dedication, energy and stamina.

Although four of the five members were endorsed by a cottagers association, there was often division in the votes. These council members, like the people they represent, brought different points of view to the table which cannot be simplistically defined as favouring cottagers or permanent residents.

The members of Minden Council have not spent their time addressing the interests of cottagers. That would be impossible, since no one can clearly identify what those interests are supposed to be.

While we welcome the presence of cottagers on our local councils, boards and committees, we do not support the confrontational sentiment that comes from grouping people into voting blocks.

A good candidate is a good candidate, regardless of whether his or her residence is classed as seasonal or permanent.

Taxpayers federation calls for spending freeze in new provincial budget

Ontario Finance Minister Floyd Laughren's promise of not new taxes in next week's provincial budget is of little consolation to taxpayers.

After being hammered with record tax increases, the Ontario economy can no longer afford vague promises of fiscal responsibility.

Taxpayers will no longer suffer further sacrifices without an iron-clad assurance that this and any future governments can live within their means.

The Ontario Taxpayers Federation and its national parent organization the Canadian Taxpayers Federation will unveil Taxpayer Protection Legislation this Wednesday during a press conference at Queen's Park.

The taxpayer Protection Act of Ontario is designed to force the provincial government to balance its budget by 1996 and would outlaw deficit spending and tax increases.

It would impose financial penalties for failure to comply with the balanced budget requirement and also stipulate a debt retirement period.

The federation will also launch a campaign next Wednesday challenging all three party leaders to endorse the draft legislation as part of their platforms in the upcoming provincial election.

Founded in 1990, the Canadian Taxpayers Federation is Canada's only national taxpayer organization. It is a non-profit, non-partisan advocacy group promoting responsible and efficient use of tax dollars. With 85,000 members coast to coast, it now has five provincial organizations established in British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario.

Parents need to play a part in education

Editor,

May 2 to 6 is Education week. With that in mind, I have taken the opportunity to express some of my opinions about education and the atmosphere which I have observed developing in our schools.

Very few, if any, adults would argue that education is unimportant. In today's economy, a high school diploma is practically a necessity for employment and advancement. Those adults who didn't finish high school are wishing they had stuck it out. In fact, many are returning to school because, now as adults, they realize the importance of education to their lives and careers. Today's children deserve the chance for economic success and advancement in society too.

As adults, we know that school is important, but it appears that with increasing frequency, children are entering the school system with values and attitudes that are incompatible with learning. These attitudes are held by the minority but affect the majority's education. The work ethic and adherence to the "Golden Rule" are disappearing. Instead of respecting teachers and their peers and being eager to learn and to succeed, many children express the attitude of "I can do whatever I want to do" and "I don't care". They may not care, but their parents should! Their teachers do care and try valiantly to instill in them the values necessary for success: respect for others, dedication to working hard, pride in accomplishments, and peaceful resolution of conflicts. However, their battle needs to be supported by parents at home.

Children need to have both their teachers and par-

"Hullo Myrtle, ring up Doc Smithers for me, will yuh?"

Here is a non-recorded message from your favourite telephone company:

The days of early dialing are numbered.

No, I didn't make it up. There was a big story about it in the papers the other day. It was chock full of details about how the good old days of simple telephone use are just about over and we might as well prepare ourselves for the worst.

I have just one tiny question.

Who are they trying to kid?

Easy? What's easy about dialing a phone these days? My office phone, in addition to a punch pad of numbers and digits, has a bank of nine buttons that light up apparently at random. They have legends that read Call Waiting, Conference, Auto Redial, and also Pulse/Tone and Power/Ringer.

I haven't the slightest idea what these buttons are for.

You want easy? I'll give you easy. I'll give you my parent's telephone dialing system, Eighth Line, Schomberg, Ontario, circa 1955. Telephone dialing system consists of a pinewood (yes, real pinewood) cabinet about the size of a Smurf's coffin. It hangs on the wall and features an iron crank handle on the starboard side. Also, connected by a cord, a bakelite (look it up) earpiece that looks a bit like a large bottle stopper and a mouthpiece that resembles the speaker tube on those old German U-boats.

When a person wished to avail oneself of the aforementioned "dialing system", one stuck the ear piece in one's good ear, gave the handle a brisk crank to wake up the operator, and said into the mouthpiece, "Hullo Myrtle, ring up Doc Smithers for me, will yuh? I think the calf's got brucellosis."

Now THAT'S easy.

It is also, alas, extinct. Myrtle's gone, and so is that rather magnificent wooden wall cabinet. Replaced respectively by a disembodied robot voice (THEE

Don't get comfortable, ladies and gentlemen. We are about to be pitched into the ten-digit phone number.

NUMBER IS NYUNN...FIYUV...NYUNN...) and a piece of beige plastic too flimsy to serve as a door-stop.

Not to mention of course the "dialing system". THAT too, is a thing of the past, replaced by several generations of "refinements" and about to be transformed once again.

When I was a kid my phone number was CHerry 5, 5085. Which is to say, an easy to remember five numbers plus a memorable prefix.

From that, I graduated to a slightly harder to remember seven numbers—which is all we have right now.

Don't get comfortable, ladies and gentlemen. We are about to be pitched into the ten-digit phone number.

"We are running out of numbers so quickly that something has to be done," says a spokesman for Bell Canada. That's why in the not too distant future, you may find yourself dialing ten digits just to phone someone who may live less than a mile from where you're dialing.

Sure it'll be a pain in the butt — not to mention the dialing digit — but the telecommunications experts maintain that it will allow the phone company to increase the general availability of phone numbers sixfold.

I, for one, am breathing in shallow, excited gasps.

Ah, but why dump on Ma Bell? Complexification, like Hong Kong Flu, is going around. I just returned from a visit to Saltspring Island, a glorious, unspoiled chunk of rock and forest nestled in the Georgia Strait between Vancouver Island and mainland B.C.

There are no skyscrapers on Saltspring. No superhighways, no slums, no drive-by shootings, no MacDonalds.

There is, however a post office.

Well, fair enough. After all, Saltspring is 20-odd miles long and seven miles across at its widest. And there are some seven thousand people who call it home. So they have their Canada Post.

And, just so they don't get lost, 200 postal codes.

Yup, two hundred. One postal code for every 35 islanders. Which is even more bone-headed when you realize most Saltspringers live in two communities — Fulford Harbour and Ganges.

So why 200 postal codes? Don't ask me. Ask the planning genius at Canada Post.

And if you can't find him there, phone up Bell Canada.

I'm pretty sure it's the same genius.

On the Street

by Times Staff

The ice has cleared off most of the lakes and the summer season, though probably a few degrees off yet, is about to begin. As the business community gears up for a busier season, it is worthwhile to remind staff of the importance of the customer. There are many reasons why customers choose to shop at one business over another. The main reason is the personal interaction they have with business employees. Friendly "service with a smile" will win more repeat customers than any other inducement a business can offer. Now is the time to ensure your staff is aware of the importance of customer relations.

NEW LOOKS

Sometimes small changes can make a big difference in a retail outlet. You can see the truth in that statement at Paulette's Gifts and Collectibles. Chris Pritchard has just completed redecorating her store in Haliburton. The walls have been painted a pale green with new fixtures added in a pleasantly contrasting hunter green. A ways down the highway, at Haliburton Lumber, the customers are finding it a bit easier underfoot these days. Murray Fearrey has added new carpet throughout the showroom giving the retail area a whole new look.

MELBRYAN HOUSE

"It is the simple thing in life that count" is the philosophy of the latest addition to the Minden area business community. The Melbryan House, owned and operated by Bryan deLang and Imelda Maguire, is specializing in fine art and picture framing. As artists, they are well suited to provide advice in the selection of art or in choosing the correct frame. Located on South Lake Road, at the Bat Lake Road, the business debuts on May 20 with an open house.

DIAL ONE MINDEN GLASS

The Dial One name and logo is well known to those who have come to the Highlands from larger centres, and it is sure to become a familiar one here. This new business has opened in the former Re/Max office in the Moynes plaza. The company provides commercial and residential windows, doors and mirrors. The manager of the Minden outlet is Ivan Doiron, a certified journeyman with over 20 years experience in the glass business. We welcome this new business to our community.

WAGON WHEEL RESTAURANT

This rather personal note was slipped into the file for this week, so we cannot take responsibility for its contents. It seems that the workers who have been installing the new patio outside the Wagon Wheel Restaurant, on Highway 35, south of Minden have been providing quite a show for the patrons. Nothing like straining muscles and heaving chests to perk up an appetite. For those who have enjoyed the view, the bad news is construction on the patio should be completed soon. The good news for everyone, (including the workers), is that the patio will be a welcome extension of the restaurant's licensed dining room.

SANDALWOOD GIFTS

A fond farewell to some old friends. May 23 will mark the last day of business for Sandalwood Gifts in Minden. Debbie and Rick Mansfield have owned the store for the past nine years and will be missed by the community. Our best wishes for their future endeavours and continued success with Mansfield Plumbing.

REMINDER:

Chamber of Commerce, Business-To-Business meeting, May 11, 6-8 p.m. PineStone Resort & Conference Centre. See ad in this newspaper for complete details.

NEW BIA CHAIRMAN

Dale Merrill, of Nashville North, is the new Chairman of the Minden BIA. He is replacing former Chairman Harry Pye, whose dedication to the association has brought about many positive changes in the business community. Dale, who also serves as the secretary of the Minden Area Business Association, was elected to the post at a meeting on Tuesday, April 26 to serve until the end of December. Congratulations Dale on your new post. Sincere thanks and best wishes, Harry.

Bad behaviour hampers learning

ents working together to instill in them the values they will need to succeed. Competitiveness is an asset but it needs to not be tainted by violent outbursts of anger. Such actions as punching and kicking are known to be inappropriate in a work place, so why are some children being told by their parents to fight their peers who annoy them? Although fighting is a normal part of growing up, it should not be encouraged. Fighting doesn't solve their problems; fighting escalates their problems for them. Although I don't condone tattling, problems which are severe enough to cause a child to want to hit his/her peers should be reported to an adult so the problems can be dealt with appropriately.

I strongly support the "Shout No" campaign against child abuse, but children must not misread this message as an endorsement for them to be disrespectful of all requests of authority figures. They must learn to be cautious but not disobedient in non-abusive situations. Responding with "I don't want/have to" is very appropriate if an adult is requesting participation in an abusive act, but not when a teacher is asking a pupil to sit quietly in his/her seat and complete the math assignment.

Respect is essential to maintain a learning environment.

In closing, I urge all parents in the county to re-assess the messages their children are receiving about education and to attempt to ensure that they are receiving messages that will keep them in school and succeeding. Help our children to see the value in the "Golden Rule" and the work ethic and to learn coping strategies for dealing with anger. Everyone needs to work together to support today's children's advancement into society and not into delinquency and crime.

They are our future!

Volunteers make CNIB tick

Editor,

On behalf of the blind and visually impaired clients of the CNIB, I would like to thank all those people in the Minden area who have helped us over the past year.

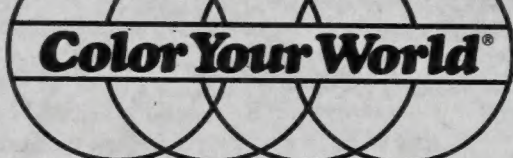

As a national volunteer organization, we rely on the contributions of volunteers, and the good will of the communities. Our volunteers in Haliburton County raise more money per capita than in any other area served by the Haliburton, Kawartha and Pineridge District CNIB.

To show our appreciation of these dedicated people, we are holding an open house and volunteer appreciation at the Haliburton County Home Support Services on Tuesday, May 10, from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Everyone is welcome.

Koz & Stouffer earn COSSA junior badminton gold medal

Four junior badminton players represented Haliburton Highlands Secondary School at the junior COSSA championships on April 27.

Although Bill Koz and Tim Stouffer faced their toughest competition of the season, they defeated teams from Napanee, Lakefield and East Northumberland, in the final, to bring home the gold medal in the men's doubles competition.

This was the second medal in two years for Stouffer. Last year he and partner Will Wallace won the silver at COSSA. Koz was a spare on that team last year.

Rachel Wilson and Jody Reid earned fourth-place ribbons in the ladies' doubles event. They defeated North Addington "B" and I.E. Weldon and lost close matches to North Addington "A" and St. Peters Secondary School of Peterborough.

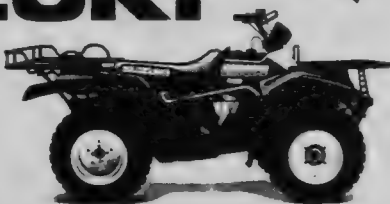

The COSSA Junior Badminton championships were held at I.E. Weldon Secondary School in Lindsay.

This ends the junior badminton season. All four of these players will be moving up to senior next year.

Firearms Acquisition Certificate

What you should know about the changes

Recent changes to Canada's firearms laws have a lot of people asking questions. The hottest topic is the Firearms Acquisition Certificate.

An FAC will be harder to get, it will take longer to get and it will cost more.

Senior Constable W.A.R. Buchanan, Minden OPP's Firearms Officer, sheds some light on the subject. To clear things up, Buchanan explained that unless someone plans to acquire a firearm, which includes purchasing, borrowing, having one willed, receiving one as a gift or any other ways there are to acquire a firearm, he or she needs an FAC. Having said that, Buchanan added that unless you have plans to acquire a firearm or add to your collection, there is no need to have an FAC.

"Some people are under the mistaken impression that they need an FAC to hunt or that if their FAC expires, they have to renew it to legally possess the guns they already have," Buchanan said. "A Firearms Acquisition Certificate is only necessary if you intend to acquire a firearm."

Those who have had an FAC in the past and intend to renew it may be in for a surprise. Legislation that came into effect earlier this year changed the procedure drastically. In the past, you went to your local police force, filled out a form and left it with the police. They did a cursory check to make sure you weren't a felon and two or three weeks later, you went back, handed over $10 and picked up your FAC.

Those days are gone. Now, you must pass a comprehensive examination which includes all aspects of firearms use, from plinking in the back 40 with a .22 rimfire to the safe handling, transporting and storage of handguns. It is much more than a basic test focused on hunting rifles and shotguns and it is a rare individual who can walk in and take the test and pass with the required 80 per cent without first taking the comprehensive course.

Nobody is exempt from taking the test, regardless of whether or not they have had an FAC in the past.

The course will be offered periodically in the Minden/Haliburton area.

The first course in this area is slated for the weekend of June 4 and 5. It is expected to run from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days, with an hour break for lunch. Brian Austen of Minden will conduct the course and he says that even though it hasn't been advertised yet, he already has seven people signed up. He says the course will be limited to about 15 people, so it is already at almost half capacity.

Depending on response, the course may be offered as often as once a month.

The testing procedure, which includes both written and practical examinations, will take place the following weekend.

The cost of the course, which is not mandatory but is highly recommended, is $60 per person. A manual is also required, at a cost of $15. It costs another $25 to take the test (whether you pass or not) and then, you can apply for the FAC.

It will take 28 days to process the application, during which time, police will check to make sure that nobody with a violent background or a record of criminal activities is issued with an FAC.

Even if someone successfully completes the course and passes the exam with the minimum of 80 per cent, there is no guarantee that an FAC will be issued. The cost of an FAC is $50, which is valid for five years. If you already have a valid FAC which is being renewed, the fee is $25.

To make arrangements to take the course or to register for the examination, contact one of the three instructors. They are: Brian Austen 286-4634, Ron MacKenzie 286-2819 or Norm MacKinnon 286-1129.

If you plan to acquire a new (or used) firearm for the coming season this fall and you don't have a valid FAC, Austen recommends that you make arrangements to take the course as soon as possible. The instructors are also hunters and the likelihood of someone giving up a weekend during the waterfowl, moose or deer season to conduct a course is slim.

It's always tempting to simply jump in the boat and go, but if you take just a moment to ensure safety, you might avert a tragedy. Remember, the minimum requirements for vessels less than 5½ metres in length is one safety jacket for each person on board, two oars with rowlocks or two paddles, some type of signalling device, a class B-1 fire extinguisher if there's an inboard motor or a fixed tank, and a bailer.

Arcade proposal considered by Minden council

The following items were addressed at the April 29 meeting of Anson, Hindon and Minden Townships Council:

Jacqueline Lala asked Council for its support for a proposed arcade in Anthony and Melissa's Treasure Chest on Main Street.

Lala told council she plans to have the arcade open during the regular hours of the rest of the downtown businesses, with maximum hours from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. It will not be open on Sundays.

"I'll be closing the store at eight o'clock even if the others stay open to nine," she reassured Council.

Lala also promised she wouldn't allow youngsters in the arcade during school hours. She said she plans to post the school hours and list Professional Activity days so anyone who enters the business will be aware of the hours the youngsters should or shouldn't be there.

Reeve Berry had some concerns about the residents who live above the proposed arcade. He pointed out that there were some noise problems from the previous arcade that occupied the store. He admitted that the previous arcade stayed open longer than Lala's proposed hours.

Lala said that she wants to provide a place for kids to go and have fun playing video games.

Council passed a resolution supporting the arcade proposal.

No Permit?

While she was at the council meeting, Lala voiced her concerns about a business that is starting up in the basement of a home on McLeod Street in Minden.

She said she didn't understand how a business could be operated legally out of a residence without a vendor's permit.

Briefly

Minden Council Notes

Lala said she was concerned about increased traffic on a residential street.

Reeve Berry promised to have township staff investigate the matter. He pointed out that the municipality has a By-law that permits the operation of a business from a residence under certain circumstances. He added that the By-law in question was passed in 1986 to allow artisans and craftspeople to sell their work from their homes.

Sign Dilemma

John Mulder and Doug Johnson approached council for permission to put up a sign on municipal property. After extensive discussions, the duo, representing Countrywide Realty, left no further ahead than when they arrived.

They wanted to erect the sign about four feet from the edge of Main Street in front of their new real estate office. But Public Works Superintendent Clayton Cameron said that would be too close to the street and there would be a chance that the sign could be damaged during snow ploughing operations.

It was pointed out that other businesses have signs as close or closer to the street than the proposed Countrywide sign.

Since Countrywide is going to considerable expense to install a lighted sign that Mulder termed "first class," Cameron insisted that was even more reason to make sure it is set back far enough to be out of the path of the snowplough's wing or the flying snow.

Council agreed to do a site inspection to see if some sort of compromise could be reached.

Congratulations

Two municipal employees were publicly commended for their accomplishments in upgrading their skill levels through education.

Don Booth and Daisy Downs recently completed courses that will increase their job qualifications which, in turn, will prove beneficial to the municipality.

Booth successfully completed a Ministry of Environment training course on preventative maintenance. He scored 95 per cent in the final examination. Booth works at the water and sewer plant.

Downs successfully completed a four-part municipal administration course with an overall average of 89 per cent. She works in the municipal office.

Minden wants deputy reeves kept on county council

Berry expressed his appreciation on behalf of council for the efforts of both municipal employees.

Representation

After discussing at length the roll of deputy-reeves on County Council, members of Anson, Hindon and Minden Council decided to pass a resolution requesting County Council to maintain the status quo for the time being. The county is considering a change that would delete deputy-reeves from its membership as a cost-saving measure and to streamline its operation.

The county says it can save $10,000 by eliminating deputy-reeves.

Bern Berry said that he believes the county should subscribe to the "representation by population" system of government and that deleting deputy-reeves is not compatible with that system.

Councillor Jerry Rome agreed, adding that the increased work load on the reeves who would have to sit on the committees currently handled by deputy-reeves wouldn't amount to much of a saving. Rome suggested that the county would be better served by finding other ways of cutting costs.

Policing

Deputy-Reeve Lewis Stevens reported that a Community Policing meeting held last week was "very productive."

More than a dozen people turned out and much was accomplished.

An executive was chosen and it appears community policing has become a reality.

Forests

Responding to an Environment Committee request, Council passed a resolution to support the reinstatement of the Managed Forest Tax Rebate Program.

Councillor Grant Plooard told council that many landowners made improvements to their property in anticipation of getting into the program and then the program was cancelled.

"I'm waiting for the (provincial) government to say: you support the rebate, you give them the rebate," Councillor Jeanne Anthon said.

18 charged for starting wildfires

Wildfires throughout the regions of Haliburton, Bancroft and Pembroke have resulted in 18 charges being laid and another 15 are pending as investigations continue.

The fines range from $55 and up, depending on the circumstances.

J.D. Bishop, Fire Prevention Technician with the Haliburton Fire Management Area, says that a careless person could be liable for the total costs incurred to extinguish a fire.

The Ministry of Natural Resources reminds people as they head for cottage country that fire permits are required for burning from April 1 to October 31.

Permits are not required for campfires but the MNR warns that caution must be observed, especially in the spring before "green up."

Education Week activities

by the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters.

Education Week (May 2 to 6) at Archie Stouffer Elementary School will be a busy five days for the students and staff.

Today (Monday), newly elected MPP Chris Hodgson will be at the school to talk to the Grade 8 classes. The theme of Hodgson's presentation will be "With the Future in Mind" — looking to the future.

Kindergarten classes will be observing Arbor Day by planting trees on school property today. Some of the Grade 8 students will be helping out with that project. The trees will be supplied by the Ministry of Natural Resources.

Pitch-In Day is Tuesday. That's where students will clean up the grounds around the school as part of an annual nation-wide program which was initiated

An Open House will be held at the school on Wednesday evening. Displays of the children's work will be on display from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

A Book Fair and Structural Fair are also highlighted on Wednesday in the library.

The Book and Structural Fairs will continue Thursday.

The Grade 8 classes will be "job shadowing" on Friday. The students will be going out into the community for some on-the-job study in the actual workplace environment.

The Kindergarten to Grade 3 classes will study the environment, using computers.

Mrs. Lynd's Grade 5 class will be trying to determine what school will be like when their children reach Grade 5.

County considers membership cuts

In an effort to save money and streamline government, Haliburton County Council will consider cutting deputy reeves from its roles.

The decision, however, promises to be a difficult one, considering the shift this move will pose in the weighted vote system.

The county stands to save about $10,000 a year if it goes ahead with this plan. In addition, the reduced number of county councillors is expected to make the decision-making process less unwieldy.

The proposal was brought forth at the last county council meeting in March in the form of a notice of motion. Councillors were asked to give the matter some thought and be prepared for discussion at this month's meeting.

There are currently 17 councillors who sit at the county table. This proposal would reduce the number of councillors to 10.

The main objection, though, is expected to be about the impact this would have on the system of weighted votes. The two largest municipalities -- Minden and Dysart -- stand to lose some of their power if this goes ahead.

The Municipal Act allows County Councils to be comprised solely of reeves, but the method of weighting their votes according to population is bound to spark some opposition from the larger municipalities.

The act states that if county council is composed of only the reeves, the following weighted vote system applies:

Municipalities with fewer than 1,000 voters will receive no additional votes.

Municipalities with between 1,000 and 2,000 voters receive one additional vote.

Municipalities with between 2,001 and 3,000 voters receive two additional votes.

Municipalities with more than 3,000 voters receive three additional votes.

If the proposal is approved, the change is the weighted voting system will be as follows:

Municipality	current total votes	proposed total votes
Minden	3	4
Bicroft	1	1
Cardiff	2	3
Dysart	4	4
Glamorgan	2	3
Lutterworth	2	4
Monmouth	1	3
Sherbourne	2	4
Snowdon	1	2

Police lay another charge for welfare fraud

Aplsey OPP advise that a fraud investigation has resulted in charges being laid against a Cardiff woman.

Upon request from the Ministry of Community and Social Services, a fraud investigation was initiated on January 18 concerning Social Services benefits.

On April 21, charges of fraud, forgery and uttering a forged document were laid against 31-year-old Bernice Aide of Cardiff.

Boat Recovered

Constable Smith of the Minden Detachment investigated the theft of a boat, motor and trailer from a residence on Deep Bay Road. The owner advised that she kept her 16-foot "Dixie" with a Suzuki outboard on an Easy Loader trailer parked at her father in-law's property on Deep Bay Road. When she went to the property on April 21, it was gone. Information revealed that her former brother in-law had taken it.

With the assistance of Parry Sound OPP, the boat was recovered.

Charged with possession of stolen property was William Totty, 46, of Parry Sound. Since the boat was recovered in Parry Sound, that is where the charges were laid.

Dock Theft

Since Easter weekend, someone stole the dock from a cottage on Gull Lake.

Rita Seeley advised that she had two sections of pressure-treated dock stolen from her property.

The dock sections are valued at $350 each.

Councillor Anthon completes course

Minden Councillor Rejeanne Anthon recently completed the Municipal Councillor's Course offered by correspondence by the Centre for Government Education and Training at St. Lawrence College, Kingston.

This achievement involved the completion of six assignments and a final examination. Anthon has joined a very select group of more than 100 councillors who have completed this course since it was first offered in 1989.

Through a series of practical assignments, course participants examine such topics as the roles of councillors, their relations with staff, internal municipal structures, the legal and practical aspects of meetings, budgeting and financial management and land use planning. The assignment questions encourage participants to evaluate their own operating practices in relation to the approaches suggested in the course material.

Registrations are now being accepted for the next course, in September. Anyone holding office or thinking of running in the next election, can get a detailed brochure through the college.

Firefighters need better funding

by John Juke
Somerville Reeve

Fire protection against loss of property and life is one of the most important services the township can supply to its taxpayers. Unfortunately it is not recognized by either Queen's Park or Ottawa as being worthy of funding. The entire cost is from your property tax dollars, unlike roads and welfare.

I recall some 30 years ago when the siren sounded in rural areas and everyone in town responded to assist volunteer fire department. We now have what are known as a part-time firemen as they receive a stipend or honourarium. Hours of mandatory training; which is ongoing as equipment and procedures mandated by upper tier governments keep being introduced. Bunker suits must be worn in order to enter a burning building, at a cost of about $1,000 per firefighter. In the case of Somerville Township, by 1995 we will have spent in excess of $60,000 if we are to supply a suit to each firefighter. Very shortly we will probably be forced to acquire breathing apparatus at more capital cost. We often hear around coffee tables that most of these great ideas are designed for downtown Toronto. True as it might be, the life of one of our part-time firemen is just as important and we must never lose sight of the human risk involved.

We have seen minority groups virtually change our way of life in Canada and we must, as municipal politicians working with our firefighters, lobby our MP and MPP to attempt to change the manner in which this very important service is funded. Your municipalities can no longer continue to keep up with the many changes being downloaded by Ottawa and Queen's Park.

Here is an opportunity for newly elected MPP Chris Hodgson to champion what the Conservatives are prepared to offer if elected next year to Queen's Park.

The Minden Baseball Association received a big boost from the Lions recently in the way of a $2,500 donation. The money will be used to replace worn equipment, defray expenses and help with the annual tournament. Lions Daryl Moore and George Moulton presented the cheque to Cathy Snell and Michelle Bromley. In addition to this donation, the Lions are also sponsoring one of the more than 20 teams in the league this year.

Dinner, dance and speaker to boost emergency house fund

Sunera Thobani, president of the National Action Committee for the Status of Women, will be the guest speaker at Saturday's fundraising dinner for the Emergency House.

The event will be held at the Haliburton Curling Club, beginning with a social hour at 6 p.m. Dinner will be from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. It will be catered by Double D catering and will include roast turkey and vegetarian lasagna with all the trimmings.

Thobani will be speaking at 8:30 p.m. and her topic will be New Reproductive Technologies. There will also be musical entertainment featuring Stringy Bark Treeo. The evening will close with a raffle, which includes gifts of art from most of the artists on the Studio Tour.

Tickets are $25 each and are available at SIRCH (457-1742).

If you are a person who supports the Emergency House and would like to attend but are unable to do so because of financial constraints, there are some tickets available from SIRCH. These tickets have been purchased by local business people and donated back for this purpose.

Grassroots politics lives on in Japan

There is a widespread assumption that today's politicians are arrogant and uncaring. It has fueled the spectacular rise of Ross Perot and Preston Manning. But such cynicism about political office becomes self fulfilling if idealistic people of high calibre are discouraged from running for office.

The low opinion of politicians is reinforced by the paucity of examples of legislators putting their jobs on the line for a principle. And has there ever been a politician who, having gained political office for high ideals and with no hint of scandal, has passed the office on to others at the height of power? I met such a person in Japan, of all places. His name is Kiichiro Tomino and he could well be an inspiration for us in Canada.

Tomino is 50 years old and lives in Zushi, a city of 68,000 people, many of whom commute to work in Tokyo. His family has lived in this region for over 300 years. Tomino's great love was astronomy but when his father died, he quit his PhD studies and returned to Zushi to take over the family business. Adjacent to the city is the Ikego forest, a 290-hectare tract that was expropriated and used for munitions storage and military training during the second world war.

After the war, Ikego was left alone and reverted to a rich wilderness which was much loved by the people. But in 1982, the Japanese government announced plans to reclaim the forest in order to construct a housing complex for U.S. Navy personnel. Tomino was galvanized to oppose the development along with housewives, elders, environmentalists and anti-war activists.

The group collected 46,000 signatures opposing the plan. But the mayor and council favored construction and ignored the opposition. Three housewives were sent to Washington to plead with then-defence secretary Caspar Weinberger. He turned them down. So in 1984,

Reflections

by David Suzuki

the group decided to run a housewife for mayor. She backed out at the last minute and Tomino reluctantly replaced her, handily beating the incumbent of 12 years.

But Tomino was faced with a pro-construction majority on council. The anti-construction group persuaded Michael McCloskey, chair of the Sierra Club, to lobby for them in Congress.

In 1986, a pro-construction group forced the recall of Tomino who ran again and won. Meanwhile, Tomino's group collected enough signatures to force the recall of the entire council. In the ensuing election, 12 antis and 14 pros were elected. When one of the pros died, another anti was elected to deadlock the council at 13 to 13.

In the mayoral election in 1988, Tomino won easily and in the 1990 election of councillors, 15 antis and 11 pros were elected. A third term is the time when a politician's work comes to fruition, yet in 1992 Tomino passed on a third term so a housewife could run. She won along with six other women councillors for the second highest ratio of women in a Japanese government.

While the housing development hasn't been built, the pro-constructionists continue to try to thwart grassroots opposition through backroom deals. But the story is the best kind of example of grassroots democracy at work. When I asked Tomino of what he is most proud during his terms as mayor, he answered without hesitation: "That I remained a citizen and didn't become an official. What that means is that I did my politics with common sense. When I negotiated with the central government, I always believed the citizens were the most important. I always worked with citizens to make policy."

He added "Japanese think that laws can't be bypassed, but we showed that the mayor and citizens could."

Tomino praised women as the key element in the anti-construction movement and for his success. When I asked him whether he can generalize about differences between women and men in politics, he answered: "Yes — women don't lie. Men easily resort to lies and believe that's a natural part of politics."

Tomino never forgot he was part of the grassroots. He instituted a monthly news report to keep citizens informed of the goings on in city hall. He established a number of citizens' committees in which anyone interested could sign on.

Tomino set up a public service company which now hires 70 elders to work at jobs like controlling traffic for school children, working in libraries and driving school buses. They are paid more than the minimum wage and are proud to serve their community.

Tomino is a remarkable Japanese. He is enthusiastic, upbeat, optimistic and positive. He believes passionately in the power of the grassroots.

"To understand what's happening in Japan, don't look to the central government. It's dead. It's all happening at the local level. Right now it's invisible, but in five years, you'll begin to see it."

His story is a powerful model of how to involve the grassroots to bring about change.

Auxiliary still seeks volunteers to help with the busy work schedule

by Mary Guillemin

It has been a month since The Hyland Crest Auxiliary had such a nice write up in this paper. Unfortunately our president, Muriel Mark, had to leave suddenly and therefore missed all the goings on.

Well, to make our story short and sweet, Muriel had to attend to a serious illness which befell her son in Hamilton. A very young man of 47, who had to have a quadruple bypass. Fortunately all went well for him as a very new technique was performed in bypass surgery. Continued good health to him.

On the other hand, we the Auxiliary were hoping for a better response for volunteers. With so many commitments in the future for the benefit of all of Haliburton County citizens, one's heart, hands and minds must work overtime. We need some help. Surely someone out there can spare a little time to listen or understand the needs of the elderly.

Spring is in the air and with our Saturday tea, bake table, bazaar, flea market and auction coming up in the near future, we are asking for saleable articles. Please remember our goal is to complete the special outdoor activity care unit which is most important to the well-being for seniors who cannot get out to feel the fresh air or enjoy the atmosphere of being outdoors.

Once again I would like to mention that we have a very nice show case displaying hand-made gifts, very appropriate for many occasions.

I must say it was very welcoming to see our snow bird members returning as we will need extra hands to fulfill the many activities planned.

At our monthly meeting on Monday there were 25 members in attendance. Many important topics were discussed and we had the pleasure of having the Director of Nursing address us on these issues.

A motion was made to donate $800 to the home towards the cost of a special TV for the special care unit.

Continuing next meeting final details will be made to finalize our plans for the Strawberry Tea. Remember it's at Hyland Crest. See you there.

New award honours seniors achievements

More than 100 Ontario municipalities will present a new Senior of the Year Award to a resident of their communities as part of the annual Seniors' Month celebrations in June, Minister of Citizenship Elaine Ziemba has announced.

The new award has been created by the Province of Ontario as a way for municipalities to honour an exceptional, older adult who has enriched the community's social, cultural or civic life during his or her senior years.

In association with the Ministry of Municipal Affairs, the Ministry of Citizenship is encouraging municipalities to herald Seniors' Month with events designed to acknowledge the special contributions of local seniors. Dozens of municipalities are planning gala celebrations.

"Together, the province and the participating municipalities intend to send a clear message that Ontario's older residents deserve our gratitude and congratulations for the extraordinary contributions of time, energy, imagination and goodwill they make to our society," Ziemba said.

The 1994 Seniors' Month theme, Through The Years Together, was chosen to reflect the key role played by seniors in family life. It coincides with the United Nations' declaration of 1994 as the International Year of the Family.

Twenty-thousand copies of an eye-catching poster featuring the theme will decorate walls and notice boards in public buildings and seniors' facilities throughout Ontario during June.

Nightmares frightening for parents

The following questions have been submitted by families in Haliburton County and are answered by professional staff Kinark Child and Family Services. If you have a question about your family/ your children/ your parents/ yourself, write to us c/o The Minden Times, "Family Matters".

Q: Since our three-year-old boy was a toddler he has suffered night terrors. As you can imagine, there is nothing worse than being awakened by the shrill screams in the middle of the night. Now as he gets older he awakens from both his nap and every morning crying, whimpering, and miserable. So now we start every day waking up to this. I don't know which is worse. Is there any way we can change this pattern or do we just have to wait until he outgrows it?

A: There are real two questions here; one about night terrors and the second about breaking your son's pattern of waking up and acting miserable.

Night terrors often have a physical as well as an emotional basis, and so you may need to do some detective work to get a better understanding of what's going on. Establishing a regular routine for sleep and meals is beneficial, and you should check if your son is sensitive to certain foods. Look for possible stresses in your child's life, including changes such as a new baby, illness or death of a family member, a move, etc. Try to understand his view of his life and encourage him to talk about his feelings. You may want to consider assistance from your family doctor or a counselling service in this process. A useful book for you to read is "Solve Your Child's Sleep Problems", by Richard Ferber, M.D.

As for the miserable waking, this must be a stressful beginning to everyone's day in your family! It seems likely that your little boy has been conditioned through his experiences with night terrors to wake up in this state. Two possible solutions come to mind. First, you might try waking your child in a quiet, comforting way before he wakes on his own. A dark room, with the curtains just slightly opened as well as quiet music in the background, and a backrub and quiet talk may help him move more easily from being asleep to waking up. The second thought is that perhaps you have unwittingly supported your son in his bad moods if you have paid attention to him — run to his room or talked to him — when he has been in this state. For a change, you should go to his room when there is a lull in his crying or whimpering. Give him lots of praise for this ("I like to see you so happy in the morning.") and try to do this consistently each time he wakes. If this reconditioning is successful, your child's miserable mood should decrease quite rapidly.

Q: Do you have any suggestions on how to build up a child's self-esteem?

A: The best way to build up a child's self-esteem is to help her change and improve her self-criticism. When your child does something that she is proud of, help her verbalize this feeling. Instead of telling her simply that you are proud of her, affirm for her that she must be proud too. Children often tell us of their accomplishments daily and we ignore what seem like trivial details. Try to pay attention to these and ask your children if they felt they did a good job. Help them to set standards for what they have done so that they can feel satisfied with their effort, even if the end result is less than they hoped for. Children with learning problems seem to be especially affected by low self-esteem, and this may be the result of constant effort and few rewards. So remember: find every reasonable opportunity to praise your children, for the effort as well as the end result; help them verbalize their feelings; and "coach" them about their own feelings as well as telling them about your own.

Q: When you have a physically aggressive five year old, what are some ways to change this aggressive behaviour?

A: Aggression is a natural human response which requires support and practice to control. Here are a few suggestions: First, remember that actions speak louder than words — the most powerful way your child can learn is by watching how his parents act. You should also try to reward your child for being non-aggressive in difficult situations — a sticker, a hug, even a smile are simple rewards. Planning with a child before he enters a stressful situation is also helpful, providing him with some choices and allowing him to exercise some control. If your child is being aggressive, your must, of course, take action to stop the hurtful behaviour. One way is to give him a "time out" — removing him from the immediate situation (for example, to his room) until he has calmed down and then talking to him calmly about other ways to handle his feelings.

The opinions and information provided in this column are not intended to be complete answers to the questions raised, and therefore the ideas suggested here may not be fully applicable to your family's circumstances. For assistance with specific problems, readers are welcome to call Kinark Child and Family Services, 457-2555.

Automated system eases stress of home care case managers

An automated system is helping Case Managers in the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge (HKPR) Home Care Program better service their clients. Developed by Toronto-based Flynn McNeil Raheb and Associates, the Client And Services Information System, or CASIS, Handles all of the information a Case Manager needs, from a client's medical history and assessment of requirements to the ordering of services and billing.

"Our primary role in home care is to assess and determine eligibility for people who are ill and can be prevented from going into an institution . . . We look after them at home by arranging and paying for services they would otherwise be getting in an institution," says Marlene Edwards, director of the HKPR District Health Unit Home Care Program. "Now we can do this through CASIS rather than through mounds of paper."

The HKPR Home Care Program serves anywhere from 3000 to 4000 clients through five offices located in Haliburton Village, Port Hope, Lindsay, Brighton, and Campbellford. With CASIS, the offices are networked to a centralized data-base running on a Vax computer at the Lindsay office. Case Managers and their secretaries each have access to a computer terminal, and terminals are also set up in two of the six hospitals in the three county area.

Since each Case Manager handles more than 100 clients, CASIS has made the biggest impact as a organizational tool. "Trying to keep things organized when you're constantly getting demands via the telephone is tough," says Anne Tidy, a Home Care Case Manager at the Port Hope office. "CASIS is a definite improvement - it has allowed me to do much better case management."

For example, CASIS provides each Case Manager with two print-outs on a weekly basis. One is an up-to-date list of all clients on all programs and the other is a weekly planner that lays out responsibilities needing attention.

"Previously you would have to go through all your paper files and handwrite such a list," says Tidy. "Let's face it, Case Managers don't have the time to do that." She adds that the visual presentation of CASIS, both on screen and on the print-outs, is very effective.

The genesis for CASIS was a list of specifications compiled in 1990 for the Ontario Ministry of Health in an effort to determine what was needed to automate the Home Care industry. Known as the "Blue Book", these guidelines were rigidly adhered to by Flynn McNeil Raheb and Associates which was awarded the contract to develop CASIS in October 1991.

"The idea is that we would create a system that could be used by all 38 of the province's Home Care Programs," notes Robin McNeil, a partner at Flynn McNeil Raheb and Associates. "Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge is the first site to go live with a full version of CASIS."

For development purposes, CASIS was divided into two parts: CASIS I and CASIS II. CASIS I was installed at HKPR in May, 1992, and involves the primary programs, acute, chronic and the school health support, and Integrated Home Maker programs. Two other Home Care Program sites - Oxford County and Hamilton, Ontario - were also involved as pilots at this stage. CASIS II handles the ordering of equipment, supplies, and billing for services, and is currently being phased in at HKPR.

Both Tidy and Edwards expect this second phase of CASIS to help the Home Care program manage its $16 million in government funding much more effectively.

"Before CASIS it was very difficult to know what equipment you had - you had to literally go and grab the client file and laboriously try to find authorization slips," says Tidy. She adds that with CASIS II checks are built right into the system so people won't be able to be discharged from the program until the equipment has been cancelled.

Don Campbell, project director for CASIS, is with the Information Systems Division of the Ontario Ministry of Health. He calls CASIS a "very good piece of software."

"It's been well defined, well developed and for early stages operation, it's excellent," he says. Campbell adds that the impact for clients receiving services is they will receive better care quicker and perhaps will be able to stay in their homes longer.

Tidy agrees she is better able to service her clients with CASIS. "The longer I use it, the more I realize I would never want to go back to the old system," she says.

CARDS OF THANKS

We would like to thank the time to thank: Melinda O'Mara for the care and advice, the RNs and HCAs of Hyland Crest for all the love and care they gave to our grandfather Len Hamilton. We would also like to thank Marie Baker and her staff for all the kindness and time they gave Len. We would like to thank the residents of Hyland Crest for all their love and support toward Len and us. Last, but not least, we would like to thank Gary McKnight for listening to us and for taking the bull by the horns in straightening out matters that needed to be dealt with. Thank you all.

Kim and Margo Hamilton.

We would like to thank our relatives and friends for the surprise 50th anniversary party. Special thanks to Gala for arranging the party and getting the beautiful cake. Thanks also to Elinor and Bernice for helping to serve. Thank you everyone for the lovely cards and gifts.

Roy and Ethel Kernohan.

CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to thank our family, friends and neighbours for the many prayers, cards, phone calls, food, flowers and charitable donations made in Dad's memory. A special thank you to Peter and Pat for the lovely supper they prepared for us after the funeral service, it was greatly appreciated. We would also like to thank the nurses and staff at Hyland Crest and Minden Hospital and to the Gordon A. Monk Funeral Home and staff for their kind support.

The Hamilton Family.

As president of "Cowboys That Care", the new local non-profit charitable organization in Haliburton County, I don't know how I could ever say "Thank You" enough to those who donated their time, talent, dollars and door prizes for our April 9 benefit dance. I will, however, start by thanking those who donated their time and talents; namely, vice-president Lorne McAleer, secretary-treasurer France Rochat, public relations rep Lisa Connelly, Jasmine McAleer, Nancy Clarke, Julie Rochat, Josy Maybee, Donna Cowal, Jim Berard, Jane Smith, Wendy and Brian Ladurantaye, Reeve Bern Berry (who took time Saturday to let us in early so the band could set up), Kim and Rick from the Red Umbrella Inn.

Secondly, thank you to those who donated dollars and that includes each and every person who bought a ticket (several who knew they could not attend the dance and purchased a ticket solely to donate). Thanks to everyone who dropped a bit of coin in the cups for coffee or soft drinks; those who bought straw cowboy hats. This brings me to the subject of door prizes. We had a total of 50 door prizes, all donated by local businesses. To each and every one of them, I'd like to say that our organization is extremely grateful for your contributions. The list of donors includes the following: Mr D's Donuts, Rickie Wood Pottery, Highland Ceramics, Charles McPhail, Minden Home Hardware, Nashville North Trading Company, North Shore Lawn & Garden Centre, Stedman's in Minden, Stop 35 Restaurant, Headlines Hairstyling, the Times, Minden, Minden IDA, Rudy's Restaurant, Hart Lodge, Larry's Video, Red Umbrella Inn, Dreams Come True Stained Glass Studio, PineStone Resort and Conference Centre, Village Donuts of Minden, Brewers Retail in Minden, Kawartha Dairy, Easton's Valu-mart in Minden and Haliburton, Paul and Joan Brown of Haliburton. Two other businesses made very formidable contributions, namely, Special Effects for the great balloon cactus and decorations and a special thanks to Jim at B.J's Pizza for the excellent service and a deal on the pizza. To Brian Sisson and Wendy Ladurantaye, thank you for helping to save the organization a total of $370, your helpfulness will not be forgotten. Due to the efforts of all these people, we were able to donate $3,000 to the Rotary Minden Hospital Building Fund and they can all take pride in making that donation happen. To Rick Jones and Silverthorne, great job guys, you kept them hoppin'! To recap Thank You Minden and Haliburton County for being "Cowboys" that really do care!

Dale Merrill.

IN MEMORIAM

WARBURTON: In loving memory of Donna-Lynn. God gave us a little Angel September 26, 1964 and came to call for her April 29, 1965.

Dear Lord, she was so little, She wasn't sure why she was here. She knew she was a child of yours That much was all that's clear. She was too tiny to tell us That she was homesick for your presence Lord,

IN MEMORIAM

She was a gift from you, to tarry here awhile. Heaven's light still clung around the corners of her smile. You gave us eyes to see it, You blessed us as we did our best To love and give our all to Each moment that she lived. We love her lots and miss her a lot. Donna will always be a part of our family.

Ever remembered by Mommy and Daddy.

HARRISON: In loving memory of our dear friend Wayne.

You will always have a special place in our hearts.

With love,
Kevin, Lynn, Daren and Donna.

IN MEMORIAM

CALVERLEY, Catherine
(Cath) - lost to us May 3, 1992.

Two long years since you left me Cath, I can't believe it's true, For it seems like only yesterday I still had you. You were taken away so quickly And left me just to cry, No time to tell I loved you No time to say "Goodbye". Dear God, why did you take my Cathy To leave me with so much pain? My life will go on I know that's true, But will never be the same. One day we'll be together again Another place, another time, another day.

Love Ya Forever,
Jack.
